JOHOR BARU: The Star Education Fair will be held in Johor for first time, much to the delight of those planning to further their education.

Choosing the right university to pursue a tertiary education can seem to be a daunting task to many, especially with the big number of institutions offering a wide range of courses nationwide.

Uncertainties over which course to take up or which university to select are bound to affect many SPM-leavers, and as such they would need support and advice to guide them towards a good education pathway suited to their interests and talents.

Offering an array of talks, the Star Education Fair Johor 2016 would be a great platform for those planning to continue their education to gain more information on the opportunities that waits.

From the business studies options in Singapore by speaker Tan Lin Hui from the Singapore Institute of Management to a career in medicine by Monash University Malaysia head of medical programme Prof Dr Shajahan Yasin, the event would benefit visitors.

Talk on the future of engineering and automatic engineering technology in tertiary education will also be conducted by The University of Nottingham Malaysia Campus and DRB Hicom University of Automotive Malaysia.

The fair would not be limited to SPM-leavers, as working adults looking to continue their education can seek advise during a talk by the Wawasan Open University JB Regional centre director Dr Ng Peng Long.

School leavers who are looking at options of studying and working abroad can also take a peek at the opportunities available in Australia, the United States of America and the United Kingdom.

The speakers include JM Education Counselling Centre team leader Lee Borway, the American Commission on Educational Exchange adviser Kendall Quisenberry as well as the British Council exams marketing manager Cheryl Marie Bastian.

The fair will also incorporate other interesting topics such as “How to become a global chef” and “Cinematic Arts: Why do we need to study moving images” besides looking into possible careers in Operational Safety and Health. orate marketing manager Laurent Joliat would also be giving insights into the service industry trends and job opportunities upon studying in Switzerland.
